Eclipse of the Crescent Moon - Wikipedia
Eclipse of the Crescend Moon is an excellent historic fiction book. It blends historic events with an excellent and exciting story. As an enthousiactic reader of Cornwell, Scarrow and also of Umberto Eco amongst others, I do think that this book does not have to hide against these billiant authors.

Eclipse of the Crescent Moon takes place during the 1552 siege of Eger. During this siege, 2,000 Hungarians held off at least 40,000 Turkish invaders for over one month. The Turks retreated despite having had superior armaments as well as a massive numeric advantage. It's the perfect underdog story.

The Eclipse of the Crescent Moon ranks as one of the finest historical novel I ever read. It is unusual to find a Hungarian classic such as this tale to have been translated into English. The historical facts are all there and are recounted accurately while the author's imagination created a story around them.

Synopsis. This romantic and grandiose historical film depicts the era of the constant incursions and heroic battles fought by the defenders of the castle of Eger, led by captain István Dobó, against the heavy odds of superior numbers through the lives and love of Bornemissza Gergely and Cecey Éva. Gergely is inaugurated as a fighter already at the age of 7, when he escapes the captivity of the half-eyed Turk, Jumurdzsak, with Vica and the war-booty.
